Bicycles can help reduce collisions by obeying street signs, giving turn signals and attaching safety flags to their bikes.

New laws passed by the 1974 Virginia General Assembly and effective July 1, require bicyclists to ride as far to the righthand side of the road as possible and use bike paths whenever they are adjacent to the roadway. They must travel single file unless riding on roadways built exclusively for bikes. At least one hand is required for packages and on the handlebars.

Safe Driving Stressed!

RICHMOND - Courteous driving by motorists and bicyclists is vital for safe Fourth of July travelling.

"Bicycling has experienced a tremendous rise in popularity in the past several years. The combination this year of a midweek holiday and the energy crisis probably will increase local trips by motorists on the same highways bicycles are allowed to travel," said John T. Hanna, director, Highway Safety Division of Virginia.

"It is important for both motorists and bicyclists to realize they are vehicles sharing the same roadways," continued Hanna.

To reduce collisions involving skin and appearance, but to maintaining a clean product.

3. Never borrow another persons' cosmetics.

4. When water must be added to a cosmetic before it can be used - such as a cake eyeliner - it's a dangerous practice to substitute saliva for water.

5. If you develop an adverse reaction, don't try to "wait it out," see your doctor immediately.

New guidelines issued by the Federal Trade Commission require members of the Household Furniture Industry to:

A. Disclose the use of material such as plastic, vinyl, or marble dust that simulate wood, leather, marble, or slate.

B. Eliminate the practice among retailers of removing manufacturer's tags and labels that disclose information about the construction and composition of furniture.

C. Disclose test results in layman's language when a representation is made that an upholstery has been tested.

VLA Central Region Supports Medical Education

Miss Anna Dickhoff, president of the Virginia Lung Association's Central Region in Farmville, announced recently that the Central Region raised $1.055 in 1973 for medical education in Virginia. The money will be used to support several fellowship grants at the Medical College of Virginia and the University of Virginia School of Medicine.

A grant of $12,000 has been made to a medical resident at the Medical College of Virginia. Dr. Andrew K. Leake, III will work with Dr. James P. Baker, co-director of MCV's respiratory intensive care unit, in the study of pulmonary vascular problems and cardiopulmonary physiology. He will develop a research project on experimental pulmonary embolism.

In addition, a grant of $1,045 has been given to Rudolph M. Navari, Ph.D., research associate in medicine at MCV, for his studies to determine the effect of oxygen transfer of the composition of inflammatory exudates in the lung. Dr. Navari will seek methods for improving oxygen transfer through inflamed tissue.

At the UVA School of Medicine, Dr. Paul M. Suratt is the recipient of a $5,000 fellowship grant to continue his work with Dr. John L. Guerrant, chief of the pulmonary allergy section at the UVA School of Medicine. Dr. Suratt will study the treatment of patients in the hospitals suffering with emphysema, asthma, pulmonary fibrosis, bronchitis, and other lung diseases, and develop a research project using the facilities of the allergy lab, allergy research lab, and the pulmonary function lab.

Dr. Bruce Hill Hamory has received a fellowship grant of $5,000 from the Virginia Lung Association and a matching grant of $5,000 from the American Lung Association to work with Dr. Jack M. Gwaltney, associate professor of medicine at the UVA School of Medicine. Dr. Hamory's fellowship will be devoted to research. He will take part in ongoing studies on the etiology, epidemiology, and pathogenesis of acute respiratory infections.

The Virginia Lung Association is presently seeking funds for its 1974-75 medical education program. In addition to the yearly grants for the medical fellowship program for young physicians at MCV and UVA School of Medicine, the VLA is working for the establishment of a teaching professorship in lung diseases at the Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk. A total of $40,000 has been pledged for the new medical school on July 1 for the initiation of a teaching program.

Letters to contributors asking their support of the five-year, $100,000-a-year medical education program have been mailed. Included in the annual program are funds for scholarships for nurses and respiratory therapists; hospital training courses for nurses and allied health personnel; medical conferences and nursing seminars throughout Virginia; hospital consultation services for chronic lung diseases; and expanded educational programs for health personnel in Virginia communities.

According to Miss Dickhoff, "We are strongly hoping for public support of this vital medical education program. The single aim of the Virginia Lung Association's Central Region is the prevention and control of lung diseases," she went on, "and without enough physicians and allied health professionals to care for lung disease patients, we cannot achieve our goal.

"These young physicians and the teaching program in lung diseases at Eastern Virginia Medical School," she said, "are essential to the success in our continuing struggle against emphysema and other chronic obstructive lung diseases. That is why we are asking for monetary support from our many concerned contributors."

Miss Dickhoff stated that contributions may be sent to the Virginia Lung Association, Central Region, 105 High-Street, Farmville, Virginia 23901. They should be marked "medical education."

Puritan Pulpit

YOU ARE WEIGHTED IN THE BALANCES AND ARE FOUND LACKING

Daniel 5:27

It is well frequently to weigh ourselves in the scale of God's Word. You will find it a holy exercise to read some Psalm of David, and as you meditate upon each verse; to ask yourself, "Can I say this? Have I felt as David felt? Has my heart ever been broken on account of sin, as his was when he penned his penitential Psalms? Has my soul been full of true confidence in the hour of Engedi? Do I take the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord?" Then turn to the life of Christ, and as you read, ask yourselves how far you are conformed to his likeness. Try to discover whether you have the meekness, the humility, the lovely spirit which He constantly displayed.

Taken, then, the epistles, and see whether you can go with the apostle in what he said of his experience. Have you ever cried out as he did--"Oh wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" Have you ever felt his self-abasement? Have you seemed to yourself the chief of sinners, and less than the least of all saints? Have you known anything of his devotion? Could you join with him and say, "For me to live is Christ and to die is gain?"

If we thus read God's Word as a test of our spiritual condition, we shall have good reason to stop many a time and say, "Lord, I feel I have never yet been here, Oh bring me here! Give me true penitence, such as this I read of. Give me more like Jesus. Let me no longer be "found wanting, when weighed in the balances, lest I be found wanting in the scales of judgement." "Judge yourselves that you be not judged."
